

[Read free ebook] Health Promotion in Multicultural Populations: A Handbook for Practitioners and Students (Volume 3)

Health Promotion in Multicultural Populations: A Handbook for Practitioners and Students (Volume 3)

From SAGE Publications, Inc
*ePub | *DOC | audiobook | ebooks | Download PDF*

Download

Read Online

#427832 in Books 2014-01-21 2014-01-21 Original language: English PDF # 1 10.00 x 1.27 x 7.001, 2.05
#File Name: 145227696X560 pages | File size: 47.Mb

From SAGE Publications, Inc : Health Promotion in Multicultural Populations: A Handbook for Practitioners and Students (Volume 3) before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Health Promotion in Multicultural Populations: A Handbook for Practitioners and Students (Volume 3):

0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Needed for a Class, kinda boringBy stonegyr!The book has good points but a lot of common sense too. I had to buy this for a class.1 of 1 people found the following review helpful.

Five StarsBy JarvinGreat textbook!0 of 1 people found the following review helpful. One StarBy JINN.ALINSUNURINit was not a great book for the class at national university.

Edited by Robert M. Huff, Michael V. Kline, and Darleen V. Peterson, the Third Edition of Health Promotion in Multicultural Populations offers both students and practitioners an indispensable resource on assessment and implementation guidelines for promoting health and enhancing behaviors that optimize health in any cultural community. Leading experts explore a wide range of topics, including the context of culture, cross-cultural perceptions of health, conceptual approaches to multicultural health promotion, health disparities, and the contributions of multicultural populations. Using the Cultural Assessment Framework (CAF), this proven handbook includes a focus on six specific populations (Hispanic/Latino, African American, American Indian and Alaska Native, Asian American, Pacific Islanders, and Arab Americans). The text concludes with a set of tips for working cross-culturally and a discussion about where the field is heading with respect to research and practice in the 21st century.

"I thought the text was well written and concepts clearly articulated."--Justin Coran
"Not only is it a great textbook for master and doctoral levels, it is a Handbook that practitioners can purchase after graduation to use for the rest of their careers."--Mary Lou Gutierrez
"I found myself referencing it for my own research a few times throughout the semester."--Meghan Moran
"I believe the text does an outstanding job in presenting the many dimensions of health promotion in multicultural populations."--Larry Williams
"I thought the text was well written and concepts clearly articulated." (Justin Coran)
"Not only is it a great textbook for master and doctoral levels, it is a Handbook that practitioners can purchase after graduation to use for the rest of their careers." (Mary Lou Gutierrez)
"I found myself referencing it for my own research a few times throughout the semester." (Meghan Moran)
"I believe the text does an outstanding job in presenting the many dimensions of health promotion in multicultural populations." (Larry Williams)

About the Author
Robert M. Huff (M.P.H., California State University, Northridge; Ph.D., University of California, Santa Barbara Graduate School of Education) is Emeritus Professor of Public Health at California State University, Northridge. Prior to joining the faculty at CSUN, he was a health education practitioner for the Charles Drew Postgraduate Medical School in Los Angeles and Ventura County Public Health Services and Medical Center. As a professor at CSUN, he has taught graduate courses in public health education in the areas of program planning and evaluation, health behavior change, communication and media, cross-cultural issues in public health, holistic health, and other related courses. His research interests combine his undergraduate training in anthropology with his graduate training in public health and education to focus on multicultural health promotion and disease prevention programs in a variety of settings.
Michael V. Kline (M.P.H., DrPH) is Emeritus Professor of Public Health at California State University, Northridge. He has taught undergraduate and graduate courses that train students and practitioners to design, implement, and evaluate health promotion and education programs within a variety of health settings, population groups, and public sector and community organizations. He received his M.P.H. degree in public health education and behavioral sciences from the University of California, Berkeley School of Public Health. He received his DrPH degree in medical care organization and health administration from the University of California, Los Angeles School of Public Health.
Darleen V. Peterson (M.A., M.P.H., Ph.D., M.C.H.E.S.) is Associate Professor of Practice and Associate Dean for Academic Affairs at Claremont Graduate University (CGU). She is the founding director of the Master of Public Health Program in the School of Community and Global Health at CGU. She served as Assistant Professor in the Department of Preventive Medicine, as well as Assistant Director for the Master of Public Health program at the University of Southern California (USC). Her research interests include health communication, specifically the evaluation of statewide tobacco control campaigns and the assessment of pro-tobacco marketing activities. She received an M.A. in Communications Management from USC's Annenberg School for Communication, an M.P.H. in Community Health Education from California State University, Northridge, and a Ph.D. in Preventive Medicine (Health Behavior Research) from USC. She is a masters-level certified health education specialist.