

Palookaville #22

Seth

Download PDF / ePub / DOC / audiobook / ebooks*

DOWNLOAD

READ ONLINE

#1122898 in Books 2015-04-21 2015-04-21 Original language: English PDF # 1 223.01 x .74 x 6.611, 1.00
#File Name: 1770461639120 pages | File size: 67.Mb

Seth : Palookaville #22 before purchasing it in order to gauge whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Palookaville #22:

2 of 2 people found the following review helpful. As Classic as "By the Time I Get to Phoenix" By Zac Hanscom Palookaville 22 offers the reader another glimpse into Seth's idealized past, starting with Part Four of Clyde Fans, a look at Abe and Simon Matchcard which takes up nearly half the book. "Crown Barber," a mostly photographic journey through the old barber shop in Dominion City, takes up a few pages in the middle. The rest of the book is Part Two of Nothing Lasts, a painful look at growing up isolated. I just love the detail of Palookaville. Seth reminds us of an earlier time by simply listing off the names of women Abe Matchcard coaxed into bed in his earlier days, using lies and/or money. Seth caricatures the changing seasons with giant leaves falling to the ground. Nothing

Lasts is particularly haunting, a tale of a youth paranoid about others' thoughts about him. Reading Seth makes me worry. I worry that if I ever meet him, he'll dis' me for liking Marvel comics the way people picked on him for collecting the back issues of horror magazines, something I, myself did. 1 of 1 people found the following review helpful. Seth is the Greatest Cartoonist We Have By D. A. Yurkovich Admittedly the title of this review says a lot, but it reflects my feelings about Seth's work. In the many years since he first launched Palookaville, Seth has refined and matured as both a writer and artist. The stories are deeply personal and Seth is a master of character development. PV 22 is a treat from start to finish, and I look forward to the conclusion of Clyde Fans and hope it will one day be collected into a single volume. The illustrations within may complete the package, but it's really a merger of his story and art that make Seth (in my opinion) the best cartoonist alive. 1 of 1 people found the following review helpful. Continuing a Great Graphic Saga By Richard C. Geschke Once again Seth brings us another provocative issue of Palookaville. Comprising of three wonderful and insightful stories we further peel the persona of Seth as an illustrator and story teller. The first story is part 4 of his excellent and rather sad tale of Clyde Fans. Abe and Simon Matchcard continue their tale of the evolving of the now defunct Clyde Fans Company. In part 4 which takes place in 1975 we have Abe and Simon reminiscing on their childhood. Simons playback of his mother and father reveals a sadness which would continue into adulthood. Thoughts of his old sales route selling Clyde fans and along the way telling of his flings with the female gender make his story very much like that of Seths book titled George Sprott. Again as in all of Seths works, his illustrations call back the mid-20th century living in Ontario with amazing artistic license and create an atmosphere in which Seth weaves his stories based on his own personal experiences of life. Seths second story is a short insert in the middle of the book called The Crown Barber Shop which again is a reflective piece showing nostalgia and sadness as if the original owner regrets selling the shop. Again it is Seth showing us a simple and ordinary everyday shop which to one person signifies the very purpose of life and to one person who regrets selling what he in fact loved. The third story is a continuation of Seths childhood, which to me acts as a confessional which he illustrates and tells truthfully his childhood. In the story he tells of his fears, likes and idiosyncrasies of what his formative years were all about. Again he brings forth wonderful illustrations and as always certain sadness and a reflective air which sometime we find him questioning himself. In doing this Seth makes the reader reflect on himself as he sees himself explaining his years of youthful discovery. As always I look forward to more of these wonderful graphic depictions.

A collection of wry, meditative comics from the cartoonist and Lemony Snicket illustrator In what has become his calling card, the cartoonist Seth lovingly and exquisitely designs Palookaville #22, adorning the cover with green foil, and the interior with gatefolds and ornate endpapers. On sumptuous display is Seth's continual exploration of the past and the search for resonance in the dusty corners of his consciousness. In three separate sections, this bittersweet reconciliation with the past and bygone eras manifests both in his comics and his non-comics art. Readers will return to the world of Dominion, where Abe and Simon Matchcard of Clyde Fans are engaged in a war of the words over the slow, painful disintegration of their family business. Their disagreement leads Abe to visit an old flame and further ensue in a battle of memories, in the conclusion of part four of Seth's long running and acclaimed narrative. In chapter two of his autobiographical serial "Nothing Lasts", Seth revisits his small town Ontario childhood. He explores his town's library, drug store, and post office, places whose daily presence in his young life provided comfort and stability amid the school taunts, the many moves Seth's family endured, and his parents' unhappy marriage. Each volume of Palookaville treats readers to a new facet of Seth's creative output. Volume 22 features a photo essay of the fictional history he created for the actual Crown Barber Shop in Guelph, Ontario, owned and operated by his wife Tania, complete with a comic on the art of barbering. The Palookaville digest is the grand endeavour of one of Canada's greatest artists.

Seth is one of our premiere artists of isolation in any medium. National Post [Palookaville # 21] allows for a fuller manifestation of Seth's . . . aesthetic . . . Consummately iconographic . . . Rich with longing, haunted memory, and masterful control. The A.V. Club About the Author Seth has been producing comic art for twenty years. His books include Its a Good Life, If You Dont Weaken; Wimbledon Green; and George Sprott. Apart from comics, he is the illustrator for the Lemony Snicket All the Wrong Questions series. He is also the designer behind the Complete Peanuts series. From his home in Guelph, Ontario, he does illustrations for numerous magazines, including The New Yorker.