By Shineh It's really good but it's way too short I think sort of an Arnold Schwarzenegger character in it. I recommend this to mature 10 year olds or 11 year old.

By spazthrow The story is standard predators territory. and the art was well drawn. just don't be fooled by the amazing paintings on the covers. inside the masks all look stupid and definitely not true to the source movies. so if your looking for cool pictures of the Predators in action? this is not the book for you. if you want a short read with lots of fighting? then go for it. 0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Bland action book

By Phillip Schultz
Where do I even begin? This story is set in an Africa town with a U.S. (?) military base stationed nearby. The town has been decimated due to a conflict with a local warlord. And then some predators show up and start killing people. That's pretty much all that happens here. It really could have used an extra 32 pages to fill out some story. It does give some back story on the human characters, although they still end up feeling pretty flat. There isn't much for plot. The predators are hunting the humans for unstated reasons (anyone that knows anything about predators can figure it out), and another group of predators is hunting them. The book is full of action and the art isn't bad. These just weren't enough to carry it for me.

The world's attention is focused painfully on a brutal third-world civil war, a merciless sectarian conflict sparing neither soldier nor civilian, grandmother nor child. But amidst the terror and carnage, where great nations and powerful interests jockey for position and advantage, another blood feud rages in the shadows, one no more humane but decidedly less human. Two warring tribes from the stars have chosen Earth's killing fields as their arena, with each clan sworn to eradicate the other... and all who stand between them. Each is the other's prey, each the other's Predator. The hunt resumes as Dark Horse Books unleashes Predator once again into the graphic-fiction jungle. Features the creative team of writer John Arcudi (Aliens, B.P.R.D., Doom Patrol) and artist Javier Saltares (Aliens vs. Predator, Ghost Rider). * Collects the hit 2009 Predator miniseries.
