Robert Crumb, Aline Kominsky-Crumb : Self-Loathing Comics No. 2 before purchasing it in order to gauge whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Self-Loathing Comics No. 2:

Featuring guest-appearances by such luminaries as Art Spiegelman and Charles Burns (all drawn by the artists themselves), Self-Loathing Comics #2 features R. Crumb's first post-documentary work and its highlights are his scathing reactions to the fame that resulted from Terry Zwigoff's acclaimed documentary. Featuring 32 pages of all-new comics and subtitled "A Couple A' Nasty Raunchy Old Things," this is a hilarious and fascinating glimpse of the everyday life of comicdom's First Couple. This was the funniest, most surprising and thought-provoking comic of the year and got Crumb nominated for a 1998 "Best Cartoonist" Eisner Award!
